HONORS TO THEIR DEAD

MEMORIAL SERVICES BY KIT CARSON POST, G. A. R.

Rev. Wallace Radcliffe Preaches Sermon at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

Members of Kit Carson Post, No. 2, G. A. R., in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church last night paid tribute to the memory of those of their number who had died during the last twelve months. The church was beautifully decorated with the national emblem, and the singing of the choir and sounding of "taps" on the bugle added to the patriotic solemnity of the

'Chaplain T. H. McKee conducted the brief xercises before and after the memorial service proper. The choir of the church sang 'King All Victorious" and the chaplain led the congregation in prayer, after which Post Commander J. L. H. Winfield requested the adjutant to read the records of

Those on the adjutant's list were Lyman B. Cutler, twice commander of his post; A. J. Schafhirt, Louis Reinburg, Wyllys Stetson, Fredrick Collins, Stephen M. Long, Robert L. Smith, John G. Johannes, James Rowen, Hiram Michaels, Frank H. Moores, D. Harris Clark, Henry H. Smith, Edward C. Stevens and Joseph Dickinson. Each had an honorable record of service in the Union army, the brief outine of which was listened to attentively by the many members of the post present. The record also included their post membership. At the conclusion of the reading "taps" was ounded on the bugle by one of the com-

Following this portion of the exercises, the commander and comrades read responsively the regular service for the dead. The choir sang the dirge, "Cover Them Over."
Before the close of the evening Commander Winfield made a few remarks fitting to the occasion, and a brief sermon was preached by the pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. Wallace Radeliffe.
Dr. Radeliffe said in part:

Dr. Radcliffe's Sermon. "These comrades, the living and the dead, teach us the lesson of the dignity of the average man. Their struggle teaches us that the best things are possible for the mcekest, the highest things may be attained by the humblest. "The time has passed for the privileged class, for the exclusive and the idle. We have been taught the dignity of the common man. We talk of 'poor human nature,' rather let us talk of rich human nature. To the ranks of the army that fought in the rebellion came the counterhopper, the mechanics, the laborers, the loafers, the weak, the deformed and even the sick, and out of their weakness and limitations so often came the larger service and the and out of their weakness and limitations so often came the larger service and the victory. We have taught the world the power, the dignity of the common people."

Dr. Radcliffe dwelt upon the price of success, saying that nothing worth the while was achieved without blood or the willing was a chieved without blood or the willing was a chieved without blood or the willing was a chieve when we want to say a chieve was a chieve without blood or the willing was a chieve when we want to say a chieve was a chieve without blood or the willing was a chieve without blood or the willing was a chieve when we want to say a chieve we want to say a chieve when we want to say a chieve when we want to say a chieve which we want to say a chieve when we want t willingness to give up life. "The gain that is enduring," he said, "is crimson. All that is worth the having comes from the sacrifice and the service even unto Continuing, he said: "Patriotism, some call it the poet's dream. The mercenary laugh at it. The luxury-loving ignore it. But there is such a thing, and the love of country is not made manifest chiefly by war. It is expressed in obedience to the law and devotion to our institutions. law and devotion to our institutions. As Moses cried that if his favor should not be granted, let his name be blotted off the book of life, so, just as fervently, I say to-night, let there be a new patriotism; a patriotism that will stand by the institutions of American life, and will insist on the original spirit; a patrotism that will rotect and not blot out of bath, that will not see our institutions de-cay in the growth of luxury.

"The danger of the nation today is not in the combination of capital, not in the federation of labor, not in the growth of luxury, not in baptized secularism, which we see within the very halls of Congress, we see within the very halls of Congress, but in the thoughtlessness, the carelessness of the people. It is possible for America to crumble. Perpetuity lies in our institu-tions, the power of the Christian religion to uphold our laws, our schools, and our Sabbath."

Fire Chief Bolt today submitted to Com sioner Manfarland his report relative to the tests of the capacity of the two cisterns, one located at 7th street ond Pennsylvania avenue and the other at 10th street and Pennsylvania avenue. The tests were made by Chief Belt vesterday morning, and ute Men at National Rifles' Armory, Thurshe says the cisterns will now supply two of day, May 12, 1904, 8 p.m. Hancock Comthe large metropolitan engines of the de- mandery, No. 3, Patriotic Order Sons of

At the test resterday morning from the 10th street cistern eight streams of water, forming a "water curtain," were thrown 228 feet. Not only did the 7th street cistern supply the water for a similar test, but here the water tower was brought into play. From the tower, sixty-five feet long, a two-lines stream of water was thrown a two-inch stream of water was thrown 300 feet. From the two turret pipes off the tower water was thrown 280 feet. Chief Belt considered them the most powerful streams of water thrown in Washington.

PART OF WHARF COLLAPSES. New One Rebuilt Last Fall-Repairs to

Old Structures. A corner of the wharf at the foot of 131/2 street southwest, used as a lumber receiving wharf, tumbled down Friday morning. The weight of the large pile of lumber which had just been loaned from a vessel broke a big stringer, and this let the platform fall. The lumber pile remained intact, but none of the boards was lost. This morning the lumber was being removed and the wharf will be repaired.

The damaged wharf was one of the new ones on the river front, having been rebuilt last fall, and was among the few on which a condemned notice was not posted last week by the building inspector. The lessees of the wharves on which condemnation notices were posted Tuesday evening last all have been at work making the necessary repairs to the structures in order to make them come up to the standard of safety required by the building inspector. The inability of the steamboat men to obtain the services of pile drivers will prevent a general overhauling of the wharves.

The lessees of the wharves claim they are living up to the requirements of their leases to keep the wharves in repair, but that the District authorities have no right to require the rebuilding of wharves that were old and in bad condition when they became the property of the District. If the District will build new piers, they say, or put the old ones in thorough order the leaseholders will keep them in good order in the future. in the future.
